Veteran educator wins agriculture award

BY ROB NOVIT
Staff Writer

After graduating from Clemson University with a bachelor's degree in agricultural education and a master's in animal science, Allen Williams thought he was heading toward a career as a county extension agent.

In 1983, however, there was a freeze on hiring, so Williams decided to try a job as the Wagener-Salley High School agricultural education teacher. Nearly 30 years later, he's still there.

"I fell in love with the people, and my wife Kathy and I felt at home," he said. "We raised three daughters there and they would show sheep in 4-H."

His peers say he's done a great job. They named him the first-ever winner of the Distinguished Teacher of the Year Award at the S.C. Association of Agricultural Educators

FROM THE MAYOR'S DESK

Everyone agrees – the greatest problem facing domestic animals is

MAYOR MIKE
MILLER

- overpopulation, and the
- only answer is spay/
- neuter.
- One female cat
- and her offspring can
- produce 420,000 cats
- in 7 years. One female
- dog and her offspring
- can produce 67,000
- dogs in 6 years.
- It's a bad situation
- any way you look at
- it: it's expensive for
- taxpayers, a safety

hazard, a waste of resources and most importantly, a terribly cruel way to manage the populations of companion animals who share our hearts and homes. The good news is that there is an easy solution. If all of us spay or neuter our pets, this problem can be eliminated.

It is difficult to get true statistics, but best estimates are that about 5 to 8 million animals are killed each year in animal shelters across the nation. This means death for roughly 65% of all animals entering a shelter. About 80% of the animals killed are cats. These "kill numbers" do not take into account the neglected millions of dogs and feral cats who are born to live short brutal lives on the outside. The average cost to SHELTER ONE pet nationally without providing ANY medical care is $225, of your dollars.

The increasing domestic animal population in Wagener is a growing problem, especially the cat population. We are very fortunate to have Aiken County Fotas and Pawmetto Lifeline offer this spay-neuter opportunity to the Wagener community. Please let us know if you need more information or assistance and we strongly encourage you to enroll your pet today.

FOTAS spay neuter assistance program to be piloted in Wagener

A phenomenal opportunity is coming to Wagener. Beginning on in August, Friends of the Animal Shelter (FOTAS) in Aiken County, in partnership with Pawmetto Lifeline in Columbia, will be offering free spay/neuter surgeries to the residents of Wagener between August and October. Plans are to spay or neuter as many as 75 cats and/or dogs. Numbers will vary depending on the type of animal and its gender. The program is open. Any cat or dog belonging to a resident of Wagener is eligible to participate.

This opportunity has been made available through Pawmetto Lifeline's annual festival, "Bark to the Park." This year, at the April event, Pawmetto Lifeline offered an opportunity for rescue organizations to compete for spay-neuter services in their brand new state-of-the-art facility that just opened this spring. FOTAS volunteers put together a team and pulled out all the stops in their fundraising efforts. Money came in from family and friends locally as well as coast to coast, Florida to England! FOTAS Aiken County took first place and won over $4,500 for spay/neuter at Pawmetto Lifeline.

Mayor Mike Miller has generously offered his office as the site to sign up for this service. Enrollment will begin on Wednesday, August 1st at the Wagener Town Hall. The spay/neuter services are

Just a little entertainment

Memories are precious. Memories are something that cannot be taken away from you. Memories bring you great comfort and joy. Memories can sustain you through difficult times. Memories allow you to remember from where you came and look forward to where you are going. Memories are God's gift from the past for the future.

For about a year now, our son Tyler and I eat supper every Sunday night at the Waffle House on Pine Log Road in Aiken. This has proved to be a special time for us; we get caught up with what has been going on in our lives from the previous week. And often after we have eaten, we drive different routes back home. The most frequent route we travel takes us home by way of Montmorenci, Windsor, and Williston. Since I am a lover of family history and cemeteries, I have high hopes that some of my enthusiasm will rub off on Tyler. Therefore the Windsor Cemetery is one of our frequent stops.

Renaldo Radcliff a brother to my great grandmother Virginia Radcliff Cofer is buried at the Windsor Cemetery. He was married to a Spires lady who was a widow and is buried in the plot with her and her first husband. For whatever reason, Uncle Nal did not have a marker on his grave for some years. However, it was eventually marked with Uncle Nal's name, birth, and date information. Also, the words "erected by George Glenn Cofer" are etched into the granite tombstone. George Cofer, my great uncle, was a brother to my grandmother Leila Cofer Lybrand and their mother was Virginia Radcliff Cofer. Mama and I first discovered that Uncle George had his name etched on the marker and could only speculate why he did so. Therefore, on Tyler's first visit to the cemetery, I directed him to Uncle Nal's grave and pointed out "erected by George Glenn Cofer". Tyler does not remember Uncle George since he died when Tyler was very young; however, I shared my memories of him with Tyler. I remember that Uncle George was always dressed in a suit and tie or a sports coat and tie. Even in the summer time, he wore a white suit and tie or a white linen sports coat and tie and always in the summer he wore a Panama hat. Uncle George was retired by the time I remember him; however, Mama told me that he was a salesman for a burial vault company and that his wife Aunt Grace would travel with him. Aunt Grace's father Deb Redd owned Redd Funeral Home; and since Uncle George was also an embalmer, he worked for him too. Aunt Grace and Uncle George did not have any children; however, they were very good to their nieces and nephews. Another grave site that we visit at Windsor is that of Maybelle Mundy; she is buried at the opposite end of the cemetery from Uncle Nal. When Tyler first saw Maybelle's grave, he commented that she was a sweet lady. Maybelle traded at Daddy and Mama's Red and White grocery store. I remember waiting on her most every Saturday when I was a teenager working in the store, and that is how Tyler got to know her too for Tyler, like me, worked at the Red and White. Ironically, I later taught school with Maybelle's daughter Dr. Debra Bass and Debra's husband Dr. John Bass was Tyler's high school science teacher. Also I taught Debra and John's daughter Ali when she was in the eighth grade. At Tyler's last piano recital he was seventeen years old; his piano teacher Nina Atkinson recognized Tyler as her oldest student, and Ali who was four years old at the time as her youngest student. Tyler later told me that he had stuck his finger in his nose and made faces at Ali to make her laugh when they were waiting their turns to play. When Ali was in the eighth grade, she told me that she remembered Tyler acting crazy. Ali is a grown up lady now and Tyler just turned forty...I wonder where the time has gone.

I told Mama that I had shown Tyler Uncle Nal's grave and that of Maybelle. Mama then told me that she believed that her great grandparents Clem Jackson and his wife were buried at the Windsor Cemetery too. On our next trip by the cemetery, I told Tyler that we were going to look for his great, great, great grandparent Jackson's graves. He started on one end, and I started on the other; and I told him to look for a very old grave marker. I discovered it first; however, it was very hard to read not only because it was so old, but because the sun was shining in my face. I was able to make out C. Jackson. I will be taking a large sheet of paper and a crayon with me next time to do a grave rubbing to discover the names and dates on the marker.

Mama remembers being told that some of the Jackson family lived in the New Holland area across the road from the building that once housed Aiken County Area 4 Office. She says that family tradition tells of the first time that her grandfather George Washington Lybrand saw his future wife Jane, the daughter of Clem Jackson. Grandpa George was with his father Wes Lybrand traveling on the road that is now highway 39. Grandpa George saw Jane swinging on the gate post in front of the Jackson house. He said that she was the prettiest little girl he had ever seen; she was about 12 years old at the time. They married some time later and had four sons and four daughters.

Tyler and I don't just go to the Windsor Cemetery; we have also gone to the Gopher Turtle Preserve which can be accessed by following the Gopher Turtle sign in Windsor. The road we turned on was paved, and Tyler and I were cruising along; I told him that the pavement would soon end and we would be riding on a dirt road. Tyler's daddy and I had been to the preserve from the opposite end of the road. Well, I had not gotten the words out of my mouth when we hit the wash board dirt road. Tyler was driving my Mercury which is normally a very smooth ride...not this time. We were bumping so hard I was afraid that it would knock my tires out of alignment. Tyler tried slowing down to near zero, then speeding up a little. We went from one side of the road to the other; nothing mad any difference. I was laughing, and my laugh sounded one pitch and then another as we bounced along. Finally we came to the turn off for the Preserve. I told Tyler don't be expecting too much. However, he was still surprised when we came to the designated area. He got out of the car and read the information on the sign, and learned that he would have to hike through the pines and scrub oak to maybe, and I mean maybe, see a gopher turtle or a gopher turtle's burrow. He opted to get back in the car, and we made it back home on the same dirt road that was much smoother going away from the preserve. It is actually a very beautiful drive as the road crosses the Edisto River.

As I have gotten older, it doesn't take much to entertain me, plus Tyler is a really good chauffeur. I get to share memories with Tyler, and we get to make memories of our own.

FINANCIAL FOCUS

Are you a hands-on investor?

By Andy Shumpert

The investment world can be complex — so you may not want to navigate it alone. But when it comes to getting professional advice, you certainly have an abundance of choices. How can you know which approach is right for you?

The answer depends, to a large extent, on how you choose to work with a qualified financial advisor — someone with the training and experience to help you work toward your financial goals. When you work with a financial advisor, he or she will analyze your financial situation — your income, current assets, family status and short- and long-term investment goals, such as helping pay for your children's (or grandchildren's) college education and attaining a comfortable retirement.

You can choose different ways of working with a financial advisor — and a deciding factor may be how “hands on” you want to be with your investment strategy. To illustrate this concept, let's look at two common ways investors interact with financial advisors:

- Taking recommendations and making choices — After evaluating your financial situation, goals, risk tolerance and time horizon, your financial advisor can recommend appropriate investments. Over time, your financial advisor will communicate with you regularly to keep track of changes in your life and to suggest any changes you may need to make in your portfolio. Of course, you have the final say in accepting or rejecting these recommendations, which is why this method is considered a hands-on way to invest.

- Investing through a managed account — In this situation, your financial advisor will help you create, implement and refine your long-term financial strategy, but the money managers will make the daily investment decisions, relying on a variety of criteria pertaining to your situation. For example, if your portfolio has become overweighted in a specific asset class, such as stocks or bonds, and is no longer aligned with your goals, it may automatically be brought back into balance.

So which method of investing is better for you? There's really no one right answer for everyone. If you're the sort of person who likes to make all your own decisions, then you might be better off following the hands-on approach with your financial advisor. On the other hand, if you are particularly busy and just don't feel you have the time to be actively involved with day-to-day investment decisions, you might want to consider a managed account.

In any case, you'll want to be comfortable with the method of investing that you've chosen. So do your homework beforehand. Whether you're interested in a hands-on relationship or a hands-off approach, you still need to interview several financial advisors to find one who has worked with people in your situation and who seems genuinely interested in helping you. During these interviews, make sure you understand everything related to working with a financial advisor — the fees involved, the way decisions will be communicated to you if you choose a managed account, and so on.

Deciding how you want to invest is your first step in working toward your financial goals — so make the choice that's right for you.

Wagener-Salley High Teacher Cadet Program

The most important goal of the Teacher Cadet Program is to encourage academically able students who possess exemplary leadership and interpersonal skills and to consider pursuing a teaching career. An important secondary goal of the Teacher Cadet Program is to provide these talented high school students with insights about teachers and schools to encourage them to be advocates of education.

The Wagener-Salley High Teacher Cadet Program is coordinated by Mrs. Mary Mason, Family and Consumer Sciences Instructor. The 2012 program enrolled six students; Lee Ellen Fulmer, Sonora Williams, Shamake Fulmer, Darryl Bynem, Jhane Wise, and Monique Ginyard. Each cadet, over a course of six weeks (three days per week) is assigned to a Cooperating Teacher who will serve as a mentor. Students are given the opportunity to observe instructional procedures and present a planned lesson during the field experience.

The Cooperating Teachers are: Marcia Lee Blizzard, Kanelia Cannon, and Quetta Hammonds of Cyril B Busbee Elementary AL Corbett Middle School and Sandi Bryan, Tami Shaffer, and Traci Williams of Wagener-Salley High.

The 2012 Teacher Cadet Class are the charter members for the WSH Future Educators of America (FEA) Organization. Other activities include: Teacher Appreciation Breakfast, Presenters at the USCA Teacher Cadet Conference, Reading to preschoolers, Storytelling through skits, School improvement tasks, and many more community and school activities.

The Teacher Cadet program is open to seniors and you can learn more about the benefits and curriculum through your school Guidance Department or visit www.cerra.org teacher cadets.

Corley looks to excel in mass media

After interning with the Aiken Standard Newspaper, DeAnna Miller got the chance to sit down with Yolanda Corley and chat about her future endeavors.

DM: First I'd like to ask, when and where did you graduate from high school?

YC: I graduated from Wagener-Salley High School, class of 2011 (I was the salutatorian).

DM: Where do you attend your undergraduate studies?

YC: I attend Winthrop University, am a rising sophomore, and currently hold a 3.2 GPA.

DM: What are your majoring in?

YC: I am a mass communication major with a Spanish minor.

DM: Are you specializing in a specific area in your major?

YC: I am specializing in Broadcast journalism.

DM: What inspired you to determine your major?

YC: I enjoy the media industry. I like reading and finding out the latest news about celebrities, latest technology, and other things. It also helps that I am a bit nosy. Basically, it will be my job to get the news and report it. It is entertainment.

DM: Is there a professional who works in field of the major that you are pursuing who also influenced your decision to major in that field? If yes, give me brief details about this person.

YC: Yes, I have a few people I look up to in this field. Mrs. Darci Strickland (WLTX News 19 in Columbia) is one of my mentors. I met her a few years back at a camp. She let me shadow her for a couple of days. She showed me the different aspects of being a news anchor. I also wrote a teaser for her. A few other of my mentors are Shaun Robinson and Soledad O'Brien. These are all women of color that are living their dreams in a not so culturally diverse job market. Shaun Robinson is a journalist for Access Hollywood. Soledad O'Brien is a journalist for CNN. These women demonstrate poise and good character on and off the camera. When I see them in action, it encourages me.

DM: Have you gained any experience in your major thus far?

YC: Yes, I have gained some experience in my major. I am a contributing writer for my school's multicultural newspaper, The Roddey McMillan Record. I am also a part of my school's chapter of the National Association of Black Journalists (NABJ), which is the only chapter in South Carolina. In the organization, we network with the Charlotte chapter since they are only a couple of minutes away. They usually invite us to events and mixers so we can get our names out there for possible jobs and other opportunities. Lastly, in one of my mass media classes I had to create podcasts, write articles, conduct interviews, shoot/edit video, create websites, design magazines, and slideshows. I enjoyed using the different software and gadgets like the iPad to do my work.

DM: What type of internships can you participate in with your major?

YC: Since the mass communication field is so broad, there are many chances and places to intern. It is possible to intern for magazine companies, radio stations, newstations, television networks, newspapers, online sites, etc. For instance, a recent Winthrop graduate now works at Vibe Magazine after interning for them while in school. Also, the Carolina Panthers offer an internship to broadcast majors where the participant has the opportunity to report the game. Hopefully when I am an upperclassman, I will get that opportunity and possibly interview Cam Newton. I recently just finished a week long internship at Aiken Standard. I learned about all it takes to put together a newspaper from selling advertisements, laying out articles, and writing taglines. I never would have guessed so much went into the process of putting together a paper.

DM: Where do you want to go or perform in your major once you graduate?

YC: After I graduate from Winthrop, I would like to move to a bigger city. I know that I will have to start off small and work my way up. I would love to work for television networks, like ESPN, MTV, or any other well know station as either a producer or journalist. It would be great because I love to travel and my jobs permits it. Also, with my major I would not have to stick to only the news aspect; I could also have a hand in television shows, movies, and commercials. Right now I am not 100% sure what I will be doing after I graduate. As for now, it is important for me to get my credentials and network.

DM: What advise do you have for other young people who may decide to pursue a degree in the same major?

YC: I would advise young people to not get into this major if they are not willing to work hard and long. There were many of late nights editing video and putting finishing touches on projects during my first year of school. I am pretty sure the work will get more intense. It is very critical to be accurate in your reporting and somewhat a perfectionist. I would also advise that they have writing skills. Throughout the mass communication field it is pretty much a requirement to be able to express yourself in writing first hand.

A TRIBUTE TO RYAN RAWL

BY JOHNNIE ALLEN WEST

Early one morning last month I walked into the store and immediately noticed a young soldier's picture sitting by the cash register, just inside the front door.

It was a young man from our area, whose father I had come to know over the past few months, because the young man was serving our country in Afghanistan.

In a fleeting moment I wondered why this picture was on the counter and not in its usual place in our military display across the room. I thought some of his family or a friend had stopped by, and somehow in the process of visiting, his picture had travelled to the front counter.

I remember smiling and thinking how much I always enjoyed seeing his dad, and about how I felt a certain link to him because, like my husband and son, he was a graduate of The Citadel, and proud to serve his country in the South Carolina National Guard.

These thoughts ran through my mind in a split second, and I remember smiling because I was proud of Ryan Rawl for his unselfish service to all of us - and then I looked up at Jim - he was just standing there looking at me, shaking his head.

As soon as I looked at him, I knew a terrible truth - that our hometown soldier was not coming home as he had left us.

I have been touched many times and in many ways by the war in Afghanistan, but nothing, and I repeat nothing, has ever reached into the depths of my soul like that moment did.

I have said many times that when a person goes to war that person's family goes to war too, lives that war with the soldier serving, and is forever influenced by that war. This is especially true for families like Ryan's.

I have had a connection of one sort or another to the war in Afghanistan since its inception, but this is the first time that someone from home, whose family I knew, had paid the ultimate price that we all frequently give lip service to, but really know very little about. Here was a young man who paid this price to insure all the freedoms I enjoy every day.

I have thought at length about how Ryan chose to pursue a quality education, how he chose to join the S. C. National Guard, and how through all this, he made the decision to voluntarily serve his country, through his military commitment.

I am sure that his stint at The Citadel, known as The Military College of the South, not only allowed Ryan to master academia, it also taught him the art of self discipline, and above all else, it taught him to believe in himself.

I feel certain that all these things combined influenced Ryan's decision to become a member of the S.C. National Guard and defend his country, as well as his fellow Americans.

I have given a lot of thought, over the past few weeks, to how much gratitude I owe Ryan for what he, and others like him, have done for me.

Every day when I wake up and decide what I am going to do during the day, I need to thank Ryan that I have the right to make that decision, and that someone else is not telling me what I am and am not going to do all day.

Whenever I decide what career I am going to pursue, or change my mind and pursue a different one, I need to thank Ryan that I have the right to do so.

When I decide what I am going to watch on television or what books I am going to read, I need to thank Ryan that I have the right to make that decision.

When I decide which religion I choose to believe is the "right" one, I have Ryan to thank for my freedom of choice.

When I decide what kind of car I am going to drive, or what I am going to plant in my garden, I need to thank Ryan because his sacrifice is the reason I can even own a car or plant a garden for myself and my family. If it were not for his sacrifice and that of many others, I might not have the right to own a vehicle, and I might be eating from a communal garden tended by my family, but shared by everyone!

When I decide what days of the week my business will be open, what hours I will operate, and who I will employ, I owe Ryan a debt of gratitude that I am allowed to make these decisions myself - that they are not dictated to me by someone else.

As I go about my daily activities I do not have to be frightened that the many terrorists who hate Americans are just one step away from destroying me and my way of life. The reason I do not have to be constantly afraid is because of the men and women like Ryan, who have paid the ultimate price that I might feel safe and secure.

Last, but certainly not least, I must remember to thank Ryan when I go to the polls to vote in the November, 2012 elections, because he has insured my right to be there. As I enjoy my right to vote, I will think of Ryan and the many other soldiers who freely chose to defend the many rights I enjoy, and I will try my best to vote accordingly.

Ryan Rawl I will not forget what you and many of your fellow soldiers have sacrificed for the rest of us here at home.

A simple "Thank you" seems terribly insignificant, but it is a must for me.

- A MESSAGE FROM THE PRINCIPAL -

Busbee Elementary and Corbett Middle School

My name is Laura A. Bacon. It is with great pleasure that I join the faculty and staff of Cyril B. Busbee Elementary School and A. L. Corbett Middle School! I anticipate building relationships with the faculty, staff, students, parents, and community. I seek to create a professional learning community in which our students can grow and develop academically, socially, emotionally, and physically. I believe that all students can succeed—maybe not on the same day or time, or even at the same rate—but they can all succeed!

I am proud to be a native of Aiken, South Carolina. I grew up in a small close knit community called “Ball Town.” I lived with my single parent father known simply as “Possum.” I picked peaches as a child, shelled peas until my fingers turned green and ached, canned vegetables, and pulled every fine hair—with those same green aching fingers—from a hog after it was slaughtered. My father enjoyed the chitlins and hoghead cheese. I enjoyed the cracklin. I am a home grown girl!

I grew up and was educated in all Aiken County Public Schools. Today, I am proud to say that I am an educator in the Aiken County Public School System. I began my teaching career as a fourth grade teacher at Aiken Elementary in 1989. I transferred to Kennedy Middle in 1992. I taught sixth grade Science and/or Social Studies there for seventeen years. I became an Assistant Principal at Aiken High in 2009. I now begin my journey as the principal of Busbee Elementary and Corbett Middle School!

For a child that would “never see the inside of a college classroom”, I graduated from college four times. I earned my most recent degree—a Doctorate in Education Administration—from Georgia Southern University in December 2011. I am certified in eight areas: Early Childhood Education, Elementary Education, Middle Level Science, Middle Level Social Studies, Elementary Supervisor, Elementary Principal, Secondary Supervisor, and Secondary Principal. I did not say all of this to brag, but to let you know that we can do all things through Christ which strengthens us. Remember the following six Ps: Prayer, Passion, Positive People, Purpose, and Path. Pray every day. Have a Passion for what you do! Surround yourself with positive people! Have a purpose! Get on the right path! These 6 Ps are keys to succeed!

The positive people in my life, to name a few, are my husband LeeRoy W. Bacon. He is a wonderful husband! He has been employed with SRNS for the past 23 years. Our daughter Dallas will be a fifth grader at North Aiken Elementary. She is a very, very sweet child and a wonderful student! Other positive people in my life include our older daughter Ferderica Banks and her children Kira Bacon, Niala, LeiLani and Leana Banks, and Imanie Mayhorn. They are wonderful children!

My mother-in-law, Carrie Bacon, is more like a mother to me. She is very special! My best friend Sabrina Davis has been there for me since we were in kindergarten. She is a true best friend!

I look forward to meeting the faculty, staff, students, parents, and community of Wagener. Let’s work together to create opportunities for success for our students at Busbee Elementary and Corbett Middle School!

Wagener-Salley High School

Dear Parents:

I would like to welcome the students and parents back to Wagener-Salley High School. It is an exciting time with the new school year and all of the changes that await our students and faculty. We have been working extremely hard this past summer to assure that the new school year will go smoothly. The 2012 - 13 school year will see more positive changes than in an average year. New academic initiatives, policies, and teachers will be seen at W.S.H.S. this year.

First, we have added 2 new faculty members to our staff. Both are very familiar faces to the Wagener-Salley community. First, Allison Cook, a Wagener-Salley graduate, is coming home! After several years as both a teacher & technology coach within our District, Allison is coming home to be one of our Science teachers. Second, Leah Shackelford, the former Bookkeeper at Busbee/Corbett, will be our new Art teacher. I am very pleased to have such outstanding educators joining our Wagener-Salley family!

We are very excited about providing the BEST educational experience for each of our students this year. We need your help. Our parents are a part of our “Team”. We need your involvement with your child’s education. Please visit, call, or contact us with suggestions, concerns, or questions.

Once again, W.S.H.S. will have an “Early Release Day”. On the first Wednesday of each month, all students will be released from school at 1:00 p.m. This year, our entire District will utilize the “Early Release Day”. Lunch will be provided to our students before release. School Bus Transportation will transport at this time. This early release will give our teachers an opportunity to work on staff development and to collaborate as a faculty. Thus, our students will benefit from the knowledge and education gained by our teachers.

As principal, I can assure you that your child’s educational experience and safety is my most important responsibility. I am humbled by your trust in our school. If I can provide information or assistance with any issue or concern, please don’t hesitate to contact me at (803) 564-100 or pkeating@aiken.k12.sc.us.

Sincerely, Pat Keating - Principal

Wagener-Salley FFA Attends FFA Camp

Fourteen Wagener-Salley FFA members attended FFA Camp located in Cherry Grove S.C. June 25-29, 2012. FFA members from across South Carolina participated in activities that helped develop leadership and communication skills. Students participated in Kayaking, Archery, Low Ropes, High Ropes, and many other team building activities.

Recreational activities such as swimming and basketball as well as a dolphin sighting cruise, a Laser Light Show, and attending the Le Cirque Adrenaline show were enjoyed by all campers.

The Wagener-Salley FFA members received the Over-all Champion Award for their successes in competitions held through-out the week. Chapters competed in activities such as the three-legged race, tug of war, and a tractor pull. Wagener-Salley members also placed first in a FFA Quiz contest, a skit showing their favorite FFA memory. W-S FFA members build the fastest two-man boat out of card-board and duct tape at camp that week.

FFA members were chaperoned by camp counselors, FFA Advisor, Allen Williams and parent, Angela Miles.

The rush of getting the kids out the door in the morning can make packing a healthful lunch is tough to do each day.

The typical parent will pack around 200 school lunches yearly, and planning them all requires some serious nutritional skills. Not only do parents need to know how to choose healthful fare, but they need to know how to pick foods their kids will actually eat.

1. Get creative with protein. Nuts and beans provide more fiber and less saturated fat than traditional proteins, like meat, cheese, and eggs. Try making a bean dip from chickpeas or pinto beans and pairing it with crunchy vegetables, like carrots, celery, bell peppers, or whole-wheat pita triangles. Or add texture and sweetness to low-fat yogurt with a handful of nuts or granola.

2. Pack edible ABCs. Fresh fruits and nuts are a fun way for kids to get much-needed vitamins, from A to zinc. For example, oranges pack a wallop of vitamin C, blueberries are full of antioxidants, and almonds are rich in vitamin E, calcium, magnesium and iron.

3. Portion control matters. Little bellies require smaller portions. While kids love opening crinkly bags of chips, the serving size may be too large and unhealthy. Instead, look for small portion packs, like .75-ounce bags of healthful nut blends, such as Sahale Snacks Cashews with Pomegranate or Almonds with Cranberries. Choose packaged foods made with natural sweeteners and flavors, like vanilla, honey and sea salt, instead of artificial flavors or high fructose corn syrup.

4. Drinks are as important as foods. Once you've gone to all that trouble to choose nutritious foods, don't ruin your efforts by tossing soda into your child's lunchbox. Opt for unflavored low-fat milk, water or 100 percent fruit juice. Many juice products only have small amounts of real fruit juice, so read labels carefully.

5. Make veggies special. Add extra flavor and crunch to salads with apple slices, nuts and dried cranberries. Or mix in pre-packaged nut blends or seasoned nuts. For young children, consider blends combining tree nuts with dried fruit, like pomegranate. Older kids might like salads topped with more flavorful choices, such as Sahale Snacks Barbecued Almonds with Mild Chipotle and Ranch.

And of course, make sure your kids brush and floss in the morning after breakfast and at night before hitting the sack. Children should brush for 2 minutes and rinse with anti-cavity fluoride mouthwash.

We at Edisto Dental Associates recommend 2 dental visits each year - make sure to get your appointment now.

We wish you a blessed school year!

Wagener Women's Well

By Dianne

I can't remember a hotter summer that came on so quickly into the season. Surely, there have been other ones this steamy but this one has left a lasting impression. My temperature gauge on my porch reached 109. Because of this sudden rise in temperature on June 30th, we cancelled our Graniteville event. We are much too old and too smart to sit in the hot sun even for a few hours risking a heat stroke.

As grandmothers, we sometimes bring our granddaughters to the Women's Well with us especially when school is out. We always try to mentor these precious young girls and teach them our crafts. Jessie Brown, one of our volunteers, suggested that they make "huggie pillows" for the children's hospital unit of the Ronald McDonald House. Red, LayLay, Luna and Summer picked out some colorful fleece material, cut it into small rectangles, sewed them up and stuffed them full of fluffy stuffing. When they were all finished, there were 10 beautiful, soft pillows for Jessie to present the next day to the Children's Hospital.

The girls were so proud of what they accomplished. I know the children receiving the pillows liked them too. One of our objectives at the Well is to teach the gift of giving. We have made many things for other charities and those in need. By blessing others, we are blessed.

Our internet connection is now up and running. We have over twenty-five beautiful quilts by Jean Redcay for sale. These one-of-a-kind quilts have been photographed, titled, priced and described for anyone interested in purchasing one (or more). Also, for sale are handcrafted pillows, aprons, potholders, and jewelry. Go to Wagenerchristcentralmissions.org for instructions how to order or call 803-606-1780 for details. (Your patience may be required for a few weeks until all the kinks are worked out.)

Our next event will be Aiken Charity Bazaar in September. This will be our fourth year participating at the Aiken Mall. We look forward to setting up our tables in the comfort of the mall – inside where it is cool, clean with lots of friendly faces.

The Tuesday Bible Study continues to be a special blessing for all of us. Marian Marie Fullard leads us as we dig deeper into God's Word. We are studying the 10th chapter of Revelation. Her insight and the Holy Spirit's guidance, makes for some wonderful teaching. We invite all women and from all churches to join us on Tuesdays at 10:30.

Until next month, 'Be blessed and be a blessing to others.'

Hot Weather Bees

By Wes Bommer

Beekeepers are preparing for the annual summer excursion to Clemson University for their summer meeting. We will be meeting in the Hendrix Building. This change in location will provide more space for vendors and the gathering of beekeepers to share ideas and fellowship. There will be a queen rearing workshop on Thursday followed by speakers and workshops on Friday and Saturday until Noon.

What do the bees do in these extreme weather conditions? There is no nectar flow at this time unless bees are pollinating a crop. To cool the hives, bees place droplets around the hive fanning their wings will evaporate the water and lower the temperatures. Brood nest temperatures will stay at 95 degrees plus or minus two.

Nectar collection will be extremely poor until the kudzu blooms. Kudzu produces a beautiful fragrant bloom that is hidden under the leaf canopy and has a strong resemblance to the sweet pea. For those who have never seen this, it would be well worth taking the time to take a peek.

Paper wasps can make themselves a nuisance at this time of the year. They make their nests by chewing bark and creating the paper-like material. These nests are built in places that don't fit in well with our lifestyle. Unless disturbed they are not aggressive. If they are in a place that they need to be removed from, it is best to remove them at night. Do not shine a flashlight on them as they may come back to that light which you are holding. Some LED lights are a spectrum of light that they cannot see. Caution should always be taken when using aerosols.

banquet in Aiken on Wednesday.

Trent Rushton, a student of Williams' and the new S.C. FFA chapter president, presented the award to his teacher. In an earlier interview, Rushton described how the program helps anybody who wants to become a better person.

"You learn about agriculture, but also about respect and other life lessons," Rushton said. "Mr. Williams is an excellent teacher and from the first day, he told us how we decide our own future. If you're willing to listen, he'll help you."

Williams taught Rushton's parents and when he took the Wagener-Salley job 29 years ago, he began teaching the children of the students of his predecessor and mentor, Spencer Smith, who is still active at 90.

"With the help of their parents, our little school has provided some wonderful, very successful children," Williams said. "I carried many of them to national and state conventions. Derrick Cooper is teaching agriculture at Gilbert High, and Ethan Busbee is studying ag education at Clemson. But there are also pharmacists, farmers, brickmasons, welders and a lot more."

People still tend to associate agriculture training with the stereotype of the poor farmer, Williams said. The field is much more than production and farming. It's about the processing and marketing of agricultural products and involves engineering, computers and other sciences. The large farms spend hundreds of thousands of dollars on equipment "to provide the safest, cheapest food in the world," Williams said.

Over the years he has appreciated the opportunities to network and become friends with other agricultural education teachers throughout the state and beyond. He has mentored young teachers, among them Meghan Wood at Aiken High - the coordinator of this week's conference.

"It's an honor to stand beside Allen and other teachers who have so many years of experience," Wood said. "It's such a tight-knit group, and they took me and made me feel welcome."

Williams plans to meet next week with two first-year agriculture teachers - Henderson Rowe at Midland Valley High School and Jacob Laughlin at the Aiken County Career and Technology Center. Both graduated from Clemson last December.

Michael Crim, the Ridge Spring-Monetta High agriculture education teacher, said Williams' guidance has been invaluable to him, "although we always seem to finish second to him (in competitions)," he said with a smile. Crim won a "30-minute" award at the banquet - given to teachers who have promoted South Carolina's agricultural education efforts in other states.

Back to school

By Dr. Tommy Huddleston

It is hard to believe summer is rapidly coming to an end, and another school year is here. Many of us can remember the excitement of getting ready for that big day. Buying new clothes, getting school supplies, finding out who your teacher is and who will be in your class is a big deal. As preparation has begun for the new school year, principals, support staff, teachers, students and parents are anticipating a successful and safe new year. They are experiencing some nervousness, excitement, anxiety, uncertainty and different levels of stress. However, working as a team will provide the confidence that a productive year is possible and attainable. I call on Christians to bathe your school in prayer.

Appreciating the team concept of providing a positive environment for teaching and learning, there is a part of the team that is crucial to this objective. That team member is the teacher. I am of the position that school teachers are greatly underappreciated and underpaid for what they are expected to do. There is no doubt that school administration, student and parents need support and are vital to the learning experience. However, the role of the teacher has changed and qualified teachers are leaving the field at an alarming rate. It is time to express appreciation for the teachers at your child's school.

Here are some suggestions to consider:

- Pray that every teacher will have a positive attitude about teaching and consider each child as a special individual with different strengths and weaknesses. Teaching is more than a pay check.

- Partner with your school and teacher in holding your child accountable for his role in the learning process. Make certain that your child does homework and gives maximum effort to studying. Teachers also should be held accountable in giving their best.

- Discipline your child so that he and your teacher will know that you will not tolerate behavior that is disruptive to the teacher's ability to teach so that the whole class has the opportunity to learn. Remember, your child is not the only student in the room.

- Defend your child if you feel he is being mistreated. However, get the facts first and do not rely entirely on what your child says. I know from experience that children can be misleading. Act with maturity not anger.

- Criticism – Most teachers will welcome constructive criticism instead of personal attacks and blame if your child does poorly. Students do not learn at the rate which makes it difficult to meet each child's needs.

- Respect – Your child needs to know you respect the teacher and will not tolerate any disrespect. This also means your child should not hear you express disrespect toward the teacher. Personal meetings with the teacher will go a long way in resolving mutual concerns.

- Be thankful – Affirming your child's teacher will usually help the teacher be the best she/he can be. Express appreciation for a job well done.

- Expect – As each member of the team properly functions, there is reason to expect a productive year. Expect each student to benefit from such a cooperative spirit. Is that not the purpose?

WELCOME BACK! HAVE A GREAT YEAR!

By: Brian Watts

It's midnight, I guess my day has started. Most people are ending their night, Tossing and turning in my bed, chasing words, guess I'm gonna' write.

I often think of my old life and on drugs the money I wasted, How I could have helped hungry people, the food they could have tasted.

Or how I drank swimming pools full of whiskey and most of my time spent in bars, Not even noticing the time of the day, or the beautiful night sky full of stars.

Now that I'm sober and God's in my life, I take nothing for granted, In the Spring and Summer, I eat corn and tomatoes from seeds that I have planted.

Every day of life is a gift from God, to remind me, I have it tattooed on my arm, He's given me animals in these woods, to raise, kinda' like a little farm.

After I od'ed He let me live to take care of my parents, and write words with a pen, Also to tell people who struggle with addictions, with God's help you can win.

He can't help if you don't want it, you have to want it within yourself, He'll open your eyes and cleanse your soul, give you better health.

It's nice to wake up with a loving heart and peace-those things I share, I put these words on paper, and tell my story because I care.

These words are written by a man who struggled with addictions in life to try to cope, God showed me the light in 2007, took the urge away to drink or do dope.

Don Harold Rivers

Don Harold Rivers, the youngest son of George and Georgie Rivers, passed away on June 19, 2012 at his home in Camdenton, Missouri with his wife JoAnn and family by his side. Don is survived by his wife, JoAnn, two step-sons Scott and Stephanie Brown; Doug and Shawna Brown; 4 grandchildren; two brothers, Bill and Glenn; and one sister Sybil Cook of Wagener, SC. Don was an Army veteran and retired carpenter. Don and JoAnn resided at the Lake of the Ozarks where, prior to illness, he spent many pleasant days fishing. He was a good fisherman and loved to prepare and serve "the catch of the day". He loved life and good food, and JoAnn's good cooking added to his enjoyment. Don and JoAnn had wonderful friends who visited often and enjoyed their home. We all miss him and will forever remember his love for family and sharing funny stories from his youth. He was a master "story teller" and we enjoyed hearing those stories.

At Don's request, there was no formal funeral or memorial. To those of you who knew of Don's illness and offered support through prayers, visits, and cards, the family thanks you. In October 2011 Don told us that he had made peace with the Lord through his acceptance of Jesus into his heart. As Don stated, "being forgiven for me is a daily process in which I strive to do better but always need the Lord's forgiving touch". We are comforted by the fact that Don is in a far better place – but we miss him terribly. We've lost a loved one but the memories are so sweet!

Ryan Rawl It is impossible to express to the wonderful people of Pelion and the surrounding community just what your show of love and support has meant to us during the difficult time of the loss of our son, Ryan. Your prayers, visits, calls, and cards have eased our heartbreak tremendously. The donations made by many businesses and the touching words on your business signs honored our son in a way that we will never forget. We were overwhelmed by those of you who stood alongside the highway to pay tribute to a fallen soldier during the funeral procession. We loved Ryan, but you certainly showed your love for him and our country that day! Please continue to pray for the 5 soldiers that were injured in this attack, the remaining troops of the 133rd MP Company and for all service men and women around the world! We are so proud to live among the great people of this community. May God bless Pelion, South Carolina and may God bless the USA!
